

Indiana has a telephone privacy law that has made a difference. I am home during the day and before the law I had to answer several calls a week, which is a waste of my valuable time. Now I only receive a call every month or two, which is still more than I would like to deal with. To lessen the effects of the Indiana law will make everyone's time less productive, which goes against all the values that make this country great.